PROPERTY SUMMARY

The properties are located in Ballard, one of Seattle's most highly populated and rapidly developing neighborhoods. They are truly unique in their setting near Ballard's retail row of high-end niche shops, restaurants and bars, as well Seattle's ship canal and the Ballard Locks. This offering presents significant value-add potential in a well-established, proven submarket. The significantly built-out submarket has little area to expand and is a desirable industrial market in the region due to the proximity to the Port of Seattle and major employment and residential centers. Residential development in the neighborhood is located generally along NW Market Street. While historically an industrial area, vicinity to downtown Seattle and rising underlying land values continues to transition the area to more dense developments. The most recent developments have involved mixed-use projects with apartments above street level retail space.

This offering includes two neighboring properties, separated by an alley way, on two separate tax parcels totaling 32,550 square feet of land. The two-story 65,854 SF building sits on a 27,900 SF piece of land zoned MML U/65. Across the alley there is a 4,650 SF parking lot zoned NC2P-65 fronting Ballard Ave NW. Positioned in the center of Ballard's Commercial district, within blocks of the Salmon Bay waterfront and several of Seattle's major landmarks including the Ballard Locks & Golden Gardens Park, this offering is well suited for numerous potential end uses, including manufacturing, warehousing, shipping, logistics, retail and office.

Ballard was incorporated in 1890 but later annexed by the City of Seattle in 1907. The area was heavily influenced by the fishing industry, centered at Fishermen's Terminal on Salmon Bay. While fishing remains a high-profile element of local culture, it is no longer Ballard's dominant feature. Ballard is now better known as an urban village and a bedroom community for employment centers in and near the Seattle Central Business District. In 1994, the City of Seattle defined a series of urban villages, areas that were targeted for growth in population. The Ballard Urban Village is intended to increase the density of development along primary arterials, and to promote co-location of housing, employment, services, and public transportation.

The center of the Ballard commercial district is at the intersection of NW Market Street and Ballard Avenue NW. NW Market Street is an east west arterial that serves as the primary surface route through Ballard and to the neighborhoods to the east (Fremont, Wallingford and University District). Ballard Avenue runs Southeast/Northwest from this intersection and is the primary retail area in Ballard. 15th Avenue NW runs south from Ballard across the Ballard Bridge and provides direct access to the Seattle Central Business District.
